SPOKANE, Nov. 13 .- The relatives of George Shaw, who was drowned in the Columbia River near Sanpoil last summer, with appropriate ceremony. An Indian came into Wilbur a few days ago with the information that he had discovered the body of a man on the bank of the river a short distance below where Shaw was last seen. Investigation proved that the corpse was undoubtedly that of Shaw, as in the pocket of his trousers was found a small hand-made purse which his relatives recognized. The features were too badly decomposed to permit of identification, but the clothing was that worn by Shaw when he disappeared. The body was brought to Wilbur.

The murder of Mrs. Seppi occurred on the evening of October 28, and was the culmination of years of dissension. Mrs. Seppi was an Italian woman and her husband is an Austrian. Upon the question of race superiority they were ever at disappearement. On October 28, after one of their quarrels, Mrs. Seppi suddenly turned upon her husband, with the remark:

"You have often threatened to kill me.

A few weeks after Shaw disappeared last summer his supposed body was found in the river and was identified by the shoes. The body was nearly nude and so badly decomposed that further identification was given up and a funeral was held over the remains. Whose body was originally buried is a matter of conjecture around Wilbur, where Shaw's relatives reside.

GOLD WEIGHS INTO MILLIONS

Mines a Wondrous Amount.

Carry Away Bags of the Dust.

SEATTLE, Nov. 13 .- Owing to the heavy rains and mild weather throughout man who took out the largest nugget of the month of October, mining in and pure gold ever found in California, has about Nome received a wonderful impetus found another fortune in his favorite votheir properties several weeks later than last year and almost up to the close of navigation.

As a result the quantity of gold for 1902 will greatly exceed the estimate made for the season. The amount shipped as amount ken out by people going to the States can only be estimated.

From data at hand, the gold product of Seward peninsula for 1902 will be about $6,500,000. If the exact figures can be obtained, they will be found to be in excess of this estimate. The known value of the amount shipped out by the banks, mining and commercial companies is about $5,000,000. This sum does not include dust taken out by individuals. Some idea of the amount taken out in this way can be gleaned from the statement made by the purser of the Ohio before leaving Nome, who said that miners on board the ship had deposited with him pokes containing nearly $800,000 worth of dust.

Assuming that this be true; it is reason able to believe that most all of the boats have taken out considerable dust belong-ing to individuals, which means that the estimate of the output at $6,500,000 is a conservative one.
